STATE NEWS.

Androscoggin

The Journal says: The town talk in Auburn is now shifted from the question of the company and the city's relation thereto to the new enterprise on the rapids. Ex-Mayor Farwell is pushing matters and a crew is daily busied in blasting and excavating for the wheelpit of the contemplated new cotton mill. It is not expected that work on the proposed canal can be reached till this fall. There is some talk in the neighborhood that the proposed enterprise will be greatly convenienced by removing the present river road further back from the river. The neighbors are numerously attracted to the spot, and rejoice in the prospect of hearing the hum of spindles. Auburn is looking forward hopefully to a considerable increase in her taxable property.

Aroostook

The N. B. Railway Co. are vigorously prosecuting the extending of that road from Caribou to Presque Isle. The company has secured four acres of land in the village very eligibly situated for the accommodation of the traffic and depot ground upon which they are erecting a very large depot, one hundred and fifty feet in length and forty two feet in width. It is very much the largest depot upon the road, indicating that the company or its managers regard Presque Isle as having a large business in the future. The managers of the road say they intend to extend their road to Houlton in the near future. If they do the road starting from Woodstock will sweep through the country somewhat in the shape of an ox bow ... miles, ending at Houlton, within twelve miles of Woodstock from whence it started.

A Fort Fairfield correspondent writes to the Lewiston Journal that the eight potato houses are nearly filled, some having as high as 2,000 barrels. The price paid for potatoes the past week ranged from $1 00 to $1 50 per barrel. The crop is below the average still there will be as much money received for it, as in any former year. The oat crop is excellent and the price will be good, as there is to be a large amount of it ... The wheat crop is a fair average but not as good as last year. The rust injured some fields. The early frosts did considerable damage to late crops.

Cumberland

Rev. Mr. Herrick, of New Gloucester, came very near being killed Saturday. He was crossing the Grand Trunk road at Cobb's bridge, and the cars were so near that they hit one of the hind wheels of his carriage and broke every spoke out of both wheels and left ... nothing but the hubs and pieces of the spokes. Strange to say Mr. H. remained in the carriage unhurt.

Kennebec

The Journal says that should the coming season prove a mild one outside of Maine, considerably over a million tons will be taken from the ice fields of the Kennebec. But be the weather mild or severe the operations will be stupendous. The companies have made their calculations to go into ice cutting more extensively this winter than last, in any event. Thousands of men will be employed and a vast amount of money disbursed for labor, nearly all of which will go eventually to swell the volume of currency in circulation in the towns and cities along the Kennebec.

The poles for the new telegraph line have been hauled and placed along the roadside from Augusta to nearly the centre of China. The blasting of the post holes in the rock for the whole route has been contracted for by Thornton Worthing, of Branch Mills who has already reached some distance north and from Brunswick in the prosecution of his contract, which extends from Portland to Bangor via Augusta and Belfast.

Lincoln

The Morning News says that John Pennett, of Boothbay, mate of a Maine vessel died in Boston and was sent home for interment. The coffin was opened in church at the funeral, and a number of blotches on the face of the corpse were noticed at the time, but none knew the cause. Since then two brothers of the deceased have been taken ill with small pox and it is feared that the contagion may be quite largely sown between Boston and Boothbay, especially at the latter place where the coffin was opened.

Somerset

The corn factory in North Anson village suspended operations in the corn-canning department on the 14th inst., canning over 251,000 cans. The farmers in this vicinity seem well pleased with their sweet corn crops, and more corn will be planted next season than there was this.

NINETY MILES AN HOUR

A LOCOMOTIVE THAT IS EXPECTED TO BE A MARVEL IN SPEED

Standing in a "stall" in the round house of the Pennsylvania Railroad in Jersey City, is an odd looking locomotive bearing the name "Fontaine." The engine was constructed for speed, and, although it has not yet made its trial trip, it is expected that it will run at the rate of 90 miles an hour. The machinery instead of being below the medium line of the boiler is entirely above it. There are three pairs of driving wheels, but only two rest on the rails. The third pair are on top of the boiler directly in front of the cab. These wheels are termed the "main drivers," and the power is communicated to them from the cylinders. The steam chests and cylinders are set at an angle of about 45 degrees, on the sides of the boiler, and the crank rods run up to the "drivers." The lower driving wheels are different sized and are not connected. The rear wheels, which are only 4½ feet in diameter, in the nomenclature of railroad men are the "ponies." The forward pair are called the "lower drivers," and are double. The main part of each wheel is 6 feet in diameter. The other part, which is a separate wheel, has much as it does not come in contact with the rail, although in the solid casting, is known as the "friction wheel." It is 4½ feet in diameter, and is supplied with a steel tire the same as the others. The "main drivers" stand upon the "friction wheels" and transmit the motive power to them. The large wheels rolling upon the smaller ones give the speed. There is no gearing whatever. The "main drivers" run in one direction, and turn the "friction wheels" and "lower drivers" in another. In order to prevent the wheels from slipping, and thus losing motion, steam pressure is applied to the main drivers to hold them down upon the wheels beneath. The force can be increased from the simple weight of the wheels to 16 tons at the will of the engineer, who is governed by the length of the train the locomotive may be drawing. The diameter of the truck wheels under the front end of the engine is 40 inches. The usual size is 33 inches. Otherwise the Fontaine does not differ materially from the ordinary locomotive. The whole affair weighs 35 tons. Some engines weigh 30 to 45. The cylinders are 17 by 24 inches in dimensions. The amount of steam carried when running is 130 pounds. The passenger engines on most railroads carry 110 pounds. The only striking feature of the Fontaine to the eye is the general appearance. The presence of the extra pair of wheels on top of the boiler has won for it the names "camel" and "hump." ... While the engine looks strange in comparison with others it does not appear ... proportioned. It is gaily painted and embellishments and ... smooth brass and iron parts are brightly polished. The engine was invented by ... Fontaine, a Frenchman, formerly a locomotive engineer whose home is in Detroit, Mich. It is the second one built. The first was completed about a month ago. It was constructed at the Grant Locomotive Works in Paterson. The first engine is now running on the Canada Southern Railroad. In May last it drew two coaches from Amherstburg to St. Thomas, a distance of 111 miles, in ... minutes. The entire run from Amherstburg to Buffalo, 230 miles, was made in 21 minutes ... stops for coal and water. Among those on board the train were William H. Vanderbilt and J. H. Rutter of the Central Hudson Railroad and W. ... Taylor General Manager and W. ... Carroll, General Superintendent of the Canada Southern.

While a reporter of the Times was inspecting the engine in the round house in Jersey City a well dressed pleasant faced man who stood a short distance away smoking was pointed out as the engineer. The reporter learned that his name was Lorenzo H. Clapp and that he was formerly an engineer on the Canada Southern. He said he would be glad to explain the peculiarities and merits of the engine and told the reporter how the machinery was constructed and how it operated. He said the locomotive had been drawing a work train on the Erie Railway for a week past. It was set at hard work to take the rough edges off the machinery. Engineer Clapp spoke of the engine as No. 2 and the one on the Canada Southern as No. 1. He thought No. 2 superior to the other in some respects. He had it out two or three times on the road and attained a speed of 70 miles an hour. The reporter asked how it behaved.

"It ran like a bird and rode like a parlor car," replied Engineer Clapp with enthusiasm. "I want to tell you," he added, "that I can go faster on No. 2 than any man in the world."

Is there danger incurred by running so fast?

"I don't think it is. The engine hugs the rail and it stands as a clock."

The reporter learned from Mr. Fontaine that the trial trip would be made in a few days. No. 2, it is expected, is of the investor are realized will run between Jersey City and Philadelphia. The use of the engine for a year or so will be given to the railroad company. The cost of the Fontaine engines will not be much more than that of the common style.

DEMOCRATS THROTTLING THE GREENBACKERS.

Nothing has been so obvious in our State politics for months past as the pet that the Democratic leaders, having made all the profitable use of the Greenback movement, are determined to force all the Greenbackers squarely into the old Democratic harness, and to crush out every attempt of their late allies to claim any further voice in political affairs. A very striking example of the sort of treatment the Democrats propose to give any body of Greenbackers who have the hardihood to nominate other than Democrats for office, was furnished recently in the Second Congressional District, where the Democratic voters staid at home and caused Gilman to be overwhelmingly defeated; and now we have another instance of the "dumping-out" policy in the deposing of Solon Chase from the editorship of the straight Greenback organ called Chase's Enquirer. Solon and his paper advocated straight-out Greenbackism and vehemently opposed fusion, and those "cowhide boots" had brought him home from a Western tour last Wednesday just in time to find himself shut out from his former sanctum. The Lewiston Journal refers to the transaction as follows:

The directors of Chases' Enquirer, Tuesday deposed Solon Chase from the editorial management of that paper, and appointed S. A. Berry of Deering, in his place, with the purpose of removing the paper to Lewiston. The avowed object of the deposition is to change the course of that paper in its advocacy of straight Greenbackism, and make it a paper which shall advocate fusion with the Democratic party on the basis of a division of the offices. The friends of Uncle Solon allege that the purpose is to make the Greenback party simply a machine to obtain a few offices for the traders without regard to principle, and ultimately turn over the Greenbackers to the Democratic party—a plan which they assert will be resisted to the bitter end by from at least five to ten thousand Greenbackers. We presume that the division is very near the line between Greenbackers who were formerly Democrats and those who were formerly Republicans. Considering that Uncle Solon was the founder of the Greenback party in Maine, and has done more to build it up than all the men who are trying to crush him, this deposition is one of the most noteworthy instances of ingratitude we have heard of.

Solon "harnessed up the old black steer" and drove down to Auburn, where he found himself voted out of office, so he squared up accounts, turned over the books to the new managers and submitted to fate, with a grim suggestion that there would come another day of reckoning. As the "Founder of the Greenback Party of Maine" rode solemnly out of town, after having been a second time ousted from control of a paper he had established, he remarked: "They may have the paper, but they hain't got the thunder!"

These events will be recognized plainly as the serving of notice that all straight Greenbackers and all Greenbackers with Republican antecedents and sympathies, are expected to fall into line under the old Democratic flag with none but Democrats on guard. Whether they will submit to this throttling process remains to be seen.

MR. O'CONNOR'S APPEAL.

[From the N. Y. Tribune.]

Educated Americans are not disposed to form a snap judgment on any phase of the Irish land question. Their sympathies have gone out to the unhappiest people on the face of the earth, but their faith in Mr. Gladstone as a statesman swayed by moral convictions is unimpaired. They pity the tenant-farmers and they abhor lawlessness. They honor the Premier and they detest coercive bills and military intervention. They know that the Irish people have been forced back upon the naked soil through the harsh action of British law; yet they believe that Mr. Gladstone has made an almost superhuman effort to right their wrongs and to retrieve their fortunes. They are ready to listen with respect and sympathetic interest to any appeal which may be made in behalf of the misgoverned island; but they are not easily prejudiced against the most lucid brain, the truest heart and the most sensitive conscience in English public life; and these, they are fully persuaded, have been devoted by Mr. Gladstone to the service of Ireland. They are glad in the present crisis to have the purposes of the Land League unfolded by one of Mr. Parnell's intimate associates, and although they do not assume to have mastered the land questions in matters of detail, they have followed the controversy closely enough to be able to form a critical estimate of such a speech as Mr. O'Connor delivered in this city on Sunday night. That estimate will be unfavorably affected by his vulgar denunciations of the Premier as a heartless tyrant—passages which may fire the Celtic blood and put money in the League purse, but which do not appeal to the deliberate judgment of intelligent Americans.

Let us take up his argument at a critical point. The arrest of Mr. Parnell—was there provocation for it? Mr. O'Connor would have us believe there was none. He says that when he left home the island was in a state of tranquil suspense. Mr. Parnell was selecting cases for submission to the Land Court which would bring out what was best and what was worst in the Act, and Mr. Healy was collecting evidence in the southern counties with painstaking thoroughness. Instead of discrediting the Land Court, as Mr. Gladstone had charged, they were acting constitutionally and keeping within the lines which the Government had drawn; and the tenant farmers were anxiously awaiting the results of the preliminary tests. If Mr. O'Connor is to be believed, the prisons were filled, the cities garrisoned and the people dragged to the very brink of revolution without cause and without provocation. Yet we happen to remember that Mr. Parnell telegraphed to America the following explanation of the programme of the recent Land League Convention: "The tenants were "instructed not to use the rent-fixing "clauses of the Land Act, but to keep out "of court and follow the old lines and rely "upon the old methods. The Executive "was empowered to select test cases in "order that tenants in surrounding districts may understand the worthlessness "of the Land Act." Here was a distinct avowal of the real object of the test cases. It was to demonstrate "the worthlessness" of the Land Act. Great mass meetings were organized. Mr. Parnell journeyed from county to county, and the machinery of the League was set in motion for the purpose of intimidating all who were inclined to accept the Land Act as a substantial measure of justice. It was a most systematic and deliberate attempt to render the measure inoperative and to prejudice the whole population against it.

Mr. O'Connor does not venture to disparage the Land Act itself. The only instance of rank injustice cited by him—that of the old farmer who improved an estate in County Mayo only to have the rent raised five times—would be impossible under the new system. The tenant's right to his improvements and also to the privilege of possession is now as secure as the landlord's right to the land; and when once the rent is fixed by the Commission it cannot be raised for fifteen years. Mr. O'Connor does not dispute this, but justifies the opposition of the League to the Act on the ground that it "cannot allow the mice to go into a court where the cats are judges." Yet Sir Charles Gavan Duffy, an intense Nationalist, who followed O'Connell to prison and was the master spirit of the Tenant League of 1852, has admitted that the Court is admirably constituted and the Commission chosen in the interest of the tenant-farmers. It is an Irish tribunal, and two of the three judges can safely be depended upon to place a most liberal construction upon the Act. Yet the League has discredited the decisions of this Court in advance. The mice are warned against cats. The League assumes the sole responsibility of deciding in a test case whether the rent is fair or unfair, and brings into disrepute the tribunal which was authorized by Parliament to intervene between landlord and tenant, and to pacify the country. The authority of the new Court is thus left to hang upon the caprices of an irresponsible organization controlled by one man. Yet Mr. O'Connor contends that the arrest of Mr. Parnell was utterly without provocation!

GROWTH OF CEREALS IN MAINE.

From the special bulletin just issued from the U. S. Census Office, giving the figures of the growth of cereals in the several States of the Union by counties, we copy the following returns for the State of Maine by the Census of 1880. One of the most significant features is the increase in the growth of wheat, in which Aroostook and Penobscot stand largely ahead of any other counties, producing in fact more than one-third of the entire crop of the State. The figures below will be found of especial interest to our far[mers]:

MORE CABINET GOSSIP.

[Wash. Cor. Boston Journal, Oct. 19.]

Those who claim to know say absolutely that while the formal offer of the State Department has not yet been made to Mr. Frelinghuysen, yet the subject has been considered through intermediaries. President Arthur has but a limited personal acquaintance with Mr. Frelinghuysen, but he is on very intimate terms with members of the latter's family. Frelinghuysen has been recommended to the President by General Grant, Roscoe Conkling and Hamilton Fish. It is also learned that Mr. Frelinghuysen much prefers the Department of Justice. It is stated, too, that Mr. Boutwell, should he be selected for the Cabinet, would also prefer to be Attorney General, which would be more in the line of his profession, and he has already obtained, some of his friends think, whatever credit there is to be had out of the Treasury Department. Judge Folger, it is also learned, would prefer to be Attorney General, as would also Judge Howe of Wisconsin. Friends of Senator Sargent say that he is on the way from California and expects to be either in the Navy or Post Office Department. It is possible that the nominations will not be sent to the Senate before next Monday, although the Democrats are becoming quite restive at the delay.

The Somerset Reporter has a new "boom" for the railroad extension and says it is to go from Dexter through St. Albans, Hartland and Canaan and strike the Maine Central Branch at Skowhegan. A few more additions and extensions will make up quite a tidy little enterprise in the line of railway building. We are waiting to hear the Farmington Chronicle suggest the advantage of having a railroad from Northern Aroostook pushed through from Skowhegan to connect with their narrow gauge at Phillips.

"You know," said a friend yesterday, "that nature has its compensations. How happy is that revelation of the microscope which shows us that the activity of the flea is partly caused by the parasites which live upon its own body." Science is consoling.—Sunset Cox.

The Portrait of Dr. Holland, by Wyatt Eaton, which The Century Co. offer on special terms to subscribers, to The Century Magazine (Scribner's Monthly) is a life-size photograph from the original crayon drawing, showing nearly the full face and part of the shoulders. Considered only as an exceptionally fine specimen of the art of photography in America, this picture is of great interest. It has, moreover, an intrinsic art-value as an exact reproduction of the work of one of the best portrait-painters of America; and it will be welcomed for its subject in many homes where the writings of Dr. Holland are familiar as household words. A leading New York critic says: "Perfect restfulness, and a dignity that few painters attain, are the traits of portraits done by Mr. Wyatt Eaton. The latest crayon head of a poet in the series of American men of mark on which he has been engaged is that of Dr. Holland. He has kept, in this case, a middle ground between the flowing locks and King-Lear-like appearance of his picture of Bryant and the rough-hewn, massive picture by which he commemorated the first of the martyr Presidents. It is a matter that tells of the times, that a thoughtful artist like Eaton should picture a popular novelist and poet so solid and sturdy of look.

It should be said that it was at the suggestion of the artist that the portrait is reproduced by photography rather than by engraving. While a life-size photograph like this is more expensive in the printing, the result is in every way more artistic and satisfactory.

Guiteau's Defence. The Boston Post's Washington special says:

"The announcement made by Mr. Scoville, counsel for Guiteau, that he will abandon the plea of mal-practice gives general satisfaction here. Nearly all of the local physicians and surgeons, who, during General Garfield's illness, were free in criticising Dr. Bliss, frankly express the opinion that in view of the revelations of the post mortem the wound made by Guiteau's bullet was necessarily fatal. Mr. Scoville is complimented for his good sense and judgment in deciding to abandon any attempt to introduce a medical quarrel in the coming proceedings."

NEW MAGAZINES.

Lippincott's Magazine for November opens with a finely illustrated paper by Charles Burr Todd, describing A Walk over Montauk, and reproducing with pen and pencil the striking features of that wild and ocean-beaten cape, with its wreck-strewn shores, its immense herds of cattle, unique bass-fishing, and desolate sand-drifts. A Varied Entertainment, also illustrated, is the title of a humorous sketch depicting some recent frolics of American art students in Paris. The eighth chapter of Dr. Oswald's Zoological Curiosities is devoted to Animal Renegades, and is not less entertaining or instructive than those that have preceded it. Mr. James L. Ferriere has found in the National Library at Paris materials for an article of great value and of timely interest. It consists chiefly of extracts from a manuscript diary of the Prince de Broglie, grandfather of the present duc de Broglie, who arrived in America just after the surrender of Cornwallis, and whose pen portraitures of Washington and other leading men, and descriptions of society and manners in Philadelphia, Boston, and Newport are very spirited and form an important contribution to the history of the period. An article on John S. Clarke, the comedian, by William Stuart, sketches the career of that eminent actor and points out his peculiar qualities as the leading representative of genuine comedy. The Order of the Carmine Countenance and an account of Shroton Fair, in Dorsetshire, are lively travelling sketches of a kind familiar to the readers of Lippincott's.

Fiction occupies a large portion of this number. The new instalment of Sherwood Bonner's bright and readable serial, The Valcours, is of unusual length. Policy 1396, by Sarah Winter Kellogg, has the intense interest and realism characteristic of this lady's stories, while Almost a Catastrophe is a lively love-story of a more ordinary kind. The poetry is by H. H. Boyesen, Charlotte F. Bates, and Frances Mace, and the Gossip and book notices will repay perusal.

CARD FROM THE BUSKIN CLUB.

To the Public:

This is the day announced by us for a final decision on the matter of the Gerster Concert. The subscription is not yet large enough to nearly defray the expenses. Feeling convinced, however, that in so musical a city as our own, there MUST be a large number of people who wish to hear the celebrated artists, but have neglected to sign the list, we have arranged with Manager Strakosch to hold it open for a short time longer.

Respectfully,

GRAND MILITARY REVIEW.

A Rough Experience

YORKTOWN, Va. Oct 20 The steamer Charleston, with the Governor of Connecticut and Staff and troops, arrived at a quarter to ten this morning The pilot did not know Yorktown harbor and anchored his boat at the mouth of York River until he could get a pilot to bring her into port. Night before last the weather was rough and two-thirds of the troops were sea sick

The Review

The military review was successfully carried out and all the other organizations marched well The route was around the Temple farm, about four miles in length, over broad fields with nothing to obstruct the view. An hour and twenty minutes was consumed in the march

When the head of the procession reached the grand stand Gen Hancock and Staff rode at the head but they then fell out of the line and with President Arthur and his Cabinet and the foreign guests and other dignitaries reviewed the troops from the grand stand

Gen Hancock stated to the President that there were 9,300 men in line The States represented by volunteers were Georgia New Jersey, Delaware Pennsylvania Massachusetts, Maryland South Carolina New Hampshire Virginia, New York North Carolina, Rhode Island, Vermont Kentucky, Michigan and Connecticut

The impression seems to be that the competition for marching lies between the 13th Brooklyn and the New Jersey troops The President was quite enthusiastic over the magnificence of the display The only colored troops in line were two companies from Richmond They were loudly cheered by the spectators from the North

Later—A Brilliant Success

The military review to-day was a brilliant success An immense crowd lined the ground over which the troops passed but until close along the line of march the reserved perfect order On the grand stand to which persons were only admitted by ticket were President Arthur and members of his Cabinet Senators, Congressmen Governors of States General Sherman and Staff, the French and German delegates and a large number of other distinguished visitors as well as many ladies

Gen Hancock's Reception

In the afternoon Gen Hancock gave a reception on board the St John Among the guests were President Arthur David Davis the French and German visitors Rear Admiral Wyman, officers of the Army and Navy members of the Congressional Committee, Governors and officers of the States

Objects of Interest—Had to Give the Pass Word

The two pieces of artillery captured at the siege of Yorktown and presented by Washington to the Chatham artillery, excite the greatest interest As illustrative of the discipline of some of the volunteers one of their sentinels refused to let Secretaries Lincoln, Hunt and Postmaster General James enter the Grand Stand without the usual pass There has been fully 10,000 troops present during the exercises

Camp Life

The State troops vied with each other in drill and discipline and the friends of each claim the palm for some crack corps The regulars excited general admiration The camps present a very animated appearance and frequent guard mountings drills dress parade, salute calls courtesies between different commands serenades speeches social visits etc occupy a great deal of time and excite great interest

Naval Review

A very large crowd lined the bluffs along the water front to witness the naval review which was changed from to-morrow as originally announced, to this afternoon At the appointed hour the sails of the naval vessels were dropped and they furled again the yards manned and 21 guns fired from each of the seven men of war as a salute to the President a party who passed each of them in a steam yacht On the return of the party the yards were again manned and another salute fired the Frenchmen manning their yards and joining in the salute

The scene from the bluff was one of the most picturesque of the whole occasion The vessels covered with bunting the yachts tugs sail and row boats with streamers the music of the bands and firing of salutes combined to make the scene one long to be remembered The President's party the Congressional Committee and, indeed all of the steamers but the distinguished visitors, left this evening and only the army and navy are lingering. Many of the State troops have gone and the rest leave to-morrow to-morrow will be cleared off from the programme

THE POSTAL SERVICE

SOME INTERESTING STATISTICS

It now appears from the report of the Postoffice Department that there are in the United States 109 cities and towns in which the letter carrier system is in operation The statistics of the postal work performed in these cities show that there were delivered there during the past year of mail letters 6,000,000 of local letters 70,000,000 of mail postal cards 60,000,000 and of local postal cards, 11,000,000, or of both classes of letter , 323,000,000 and of both classes of postal cards, 104,000,000 At the same time there were delivered 2,000,000 registered letters and 110,000,000 newspapers It will be seen that the number of letters passing through the mails exceeds that of postal cards by a little over three to one, and exceeds that of newspapers by nearly two and a half to one and that out of 170 letters only one is registered These figures however show merely the business of the free-delivery offices and that business represents only about one-third of that of the whole United States so that if these figures be multiplied by three the results will approximate very nearly the actual operations of our postal service A reference to the indicates a somewhat higher degree of activity there With a population of 35,000,000 as against our 50,000,000, the number of letters delivered in England Ireland and Scotland in 1880 was 1,128,000,000, and of postal cards 115,000,000 Our own statistics for the same year show 900,000,000 letters and 270,000,000 postal cards If Americans write (in proportion to the population) as many letters as the inhabitants of Great Britain wrote, there would be instead of 900,000,000 carried in the mails 1,610,000,000 On the other hand, the use of the postal card is not nearly so much resorted to there as it is here it being only as one to every ten letters while it is one to every three letters here It appears, therefore that we have still a great advance either in social and commercial activity or in general education in order to get on a level with our British cousins in the light of epistolary correspondence. Letter writing in

is in about the same plane of activity so far as the postal statistics supply evidence, and is very far below that of Great Britain or of the United States The number of letters carried in the imperial mails in 1878 was 521,000,000, and the number carried in the French mails was 418,000,000 Allowing for the larger population of Germany, the two countries would be about equal in the matter of letter writing.

As to telegraphing, the amount of business is still (in proportion to population) in favor of Great Britain as against ourselves, while France and Germany occupy about the same position as they do in regard to the mailed letters Spafford's Almanac gives the total number of telegraph messages in 1880, as follows The United States 33,000,000, Great Britain, 20,000,000, France, 14,000,000, and Germany, 15,000,000, but in order to be on an equality with Great Britain in proportion to population our telegraphic messages should amount to 37,000,000

But the most remarkable statement of all is that the number of railroad passengers carried in Great Britain exceeds by four to one the number carried in the United States, and that the freight traffic is also in the same enormous proportions These facts as to the relative development of railroads, telegraph, and postoffices in this country and Great Britain will not meet with ready credence here, and yet they are sustained, by the latest and most trustworthy books of statistical information.

HYMENEAL A correspondent writes D Homer F Benson of Waterville and Miss Kittie Shaw, the beautiful and accomplished daughter of Elisha W. Shaw Esq of Newport, were married at the residence of the bride's father, by the Rev Mr Battles in the presence of a small circle of relatives and friends on Wednesday evening, October 19th The bride was elegantly dressed in a suit of white satin with Spanish lace trimmings The ceremony conducted with the easy grace so characteristic of Mr Battles was very impressive The gifts were tasteful and expensive After receiving the congratulations of their friends the bridal couple were escorted to the depot where they took the Pullman train for Waterville, taking with them the earnest good will of a large circle of friends

RAILROAD NOTES Three fine locomotives from the Manchester Works in New Hampshire, arrived in this city last evening They were built for the Aroostook Branch of the New Brunswick Railroad, which has just been changed to the standard gauge The engines are like those recently built for the E & N A Railway previously described in these columns, having large cylinders and six feet driving wheel They will be set up here and go out under steam as fast as they can be made ready The first one will go out on the 5 10 train this morning —A despatch received in this city yesterday says that the New Brunswick Railroad which is now of the standard gauge is in good condition and trains are running very smoothly There is a large accumulation of freight and a great demand for rolling stock —A train on the Stillwater Branch of the E & N A Railway was brought in yesterday afternoon which consisted of twenty two cars This is the largest train ever taken from that branch

The Late Henry D Cushing

Mr Henry D Cushing whose death was announced in yesterday's WHIG was born in this State in 1803 For half a century he had been a resident of Boston but died in Washington, as previously stated whither he had gone in the hope of improving in health Although his primary trouble was kidney complaint it is supposed that the immediate cause of death was heart disease and that his end was hastened by the excitement incidental to the trip to the capital Mr Cushing was born in this State in 1803 Having secured a good education when a young man he went to Boston and entered the lumber trade in which he made a handsome fortune Unmarried he required but little money for his own use and was generous in his gifts When the Washingtonian reform movement was organized Mr Cushing was one of the leaders in Boston and soon became well known as a temperance worker He has been prominent in various temperance organizations and was one of the original members of the Massachusetts State Temperance Alliance and subsequently held important offices in that body He had a considerable interest in the Boston Daily News a paper which was intended to be a supporter of temperance reform and he lost all the money he invested in the enterprise His generosity has been marked of late years for besides numerous smaller contributions for various temperance movements he has it is believed given the Alliance at least a thousand dollars annually He was also Treasurer of the Prohibitory State Central Committee

The deceased was an uncle of Mr Ambrose C Flint of this city, who is one of his executors Mr Flint was apprised of his uncle's death by telegraph and left for Washington on Tuesday morning's train The funeral services were held in Washington yesterday

Y M C A STATE CONVENTION

Arrival of Delegates—Preliminary Meeting Last Evening

Last evening the hall occupied by the Young Men's Christian Association was filled to overflowing with delegates from the various Associations throughout the State and friends interested in the success of the State Convention which opens to day in the Central Congregational Church

After a short praise service a solemn and earnest spirit of prayer prevailed Brother McKenney, of Portland, elicited volleys of testimonies from all parts of the hall, revealing the earnestness and zeal with which the assembled workers are imbued This opening informal service is a promise of future wide awake and powerful spiritual meetings

Among those present from abroad were C M Bailey, Winthrop Dr Carlton Kimball Portland, E W Watkins, of the International Committee, New York and H P Winter, General Secretary Portland

AMUSEMENTS

"M'liss"

There was a large sale of seats yesterday for the coming appearance of the favorite actress, Annie Pixley, and "M'liss" will receive the generous reception which it deserves The Philadelphia Telegraph says

Four full houses for Annie Pixley thus far and four of the same kind to follow People wonder why she draws so well until they have seen her, then they wonder that any theatre is large enough to hold all who want to hear her Her acting charms all, her vocalism captivates all

Hazel Kirke

An exchange says The success which has attended this play is simply marvelous Nothing equals it except the strong and kindly impression it leaves on all sorts of communities From Boston to New Orleans, and New York especially, which is the quintessence of the whole country, crowd after crowd have sat in silent rapture and admired this charming domestic drama What is the reason of all this? Is this play so wonderfully constructed, so full of skillful effects? Is it so witty, so brilliant? Not at all It is simply so deeply, so touchingly human, so full of promptings that animate every honest heart, so moved by emotions that stir every feeling soul And beyond that it is presented with the rarest art

The New Steamer for the Sanford Line

The editor of the Rockland Free Press, while in Boston recently examined the new steamer Penobscot now being built for the Sanford Steamship Co and has the following to say of her

A few days since we took occasion to look over the new steamer Penobscot built at the yard of Smith & Townsend, East Boston, for the Sanford line between Boston and Bangor We are very glad at having done so because it enables us to assure our eastern people who travel so largely by this line that the new boat is to be not only a large and handsome vessel with spacious accommodations and all the improvements that the experience of years suggests, but that her hull surpasses in strength that of any merchant or passenger ship we have ever seen Her bottom is strengthened by seven keelsons four or five feet deep, strapped and bolted through and through On her inner walls abreast the wheels fore and aft strips of iron six inches wide and not less than 3 or 1 of an inch in thickness, extend from the hold upward to above the bearings of the main shaft, crossing diagonally at close intervals and bolted through at the intersections The hold is divided into three compartments by two water tight iron bulkheads The steamer will be 260 feet long of 38 feet beam 63 feet extreme width 13 feet depth of hold She will have about the same under deck accommodations as the Cambridge but while the latter has only about 70 state rooms, the Penobscot will have 105, and as she will have but one tier of rooms on the main deck her saloon will be ample Messrs Littlefield and Sturtevant of the directors are giving close attention to the construction of the boat in every particular aided by the suggestions of the veteran captains Ingraham and Homer M W Mehan is the master builder

A Letter from the Polar Regions

In an article headed "The WHIG in the Polar Regions," published in Wednesday's issue, we spoke of a letter which had been received by an employe of the Maine Central Railroad Co, from a member of the Lady Franklin's Bay Expedition The following is the letter in full

LADY FRANKLIN'S BAY,
Lat. 81° 10 N
August 6, 1881

Mr F S Aiken—

SIR Imagine our surprise when upon opening a can of coal oil this morning we found your welcome note and paper (the WHIG), the former containing the cheering words, 'Good morning, gentlemen,' written in a clear and impressive style, and the latter by its contents reminding us of the scenes at home I showed them to my fellow explorers and we at once decided to drop you a few lines, to at least inform you of our safe arrival in these drear and desolate regions Perhaps you have ere this read in some paper some account of our exploits, several letters having been sent from different places,—Disco and Upernavik, Greenland, especially. On the 7th day of July we left St Johns, N F, and ten days brought us to Disco Three days were very stormy and disagreeable At Disco we remained four days, where the time passed pleasantly, thanks to the society of the pretty Esquimaux girls Dances gotten up especially for our benefit were attended every night. On the 21st we left for Ritenbenk, where we remained one day On the 24th we arrived at Upernavik where we were royally entertained by the Governor We remained there five days, taking on board two native hunters, a complement of dogs, sleds, skins and clothing. The first day out from Upernavik we encountered a small ice pack and succeeded in killing a polar bear, I having the honor of putting the first bullet into him We encountered very little ice until August 3d, when we came in sight of our future home for the next two years, twelve miles distant, but found the door of Lady Franklin's apartment barred by ice six or seven feet thick. The vessel (the sealing steamer Proteus) nobly butted against it for a while, but finally gave up in despair Here we are, surrounded by ice, and seeing no possible chance for a speedy delivery. From time to time I will add a little to this letter until the ship leaves.

AUG. 20—Impossible to write more, hard at work unloading; ship returns at once. You will greatly oblige myself and comrades by answering this letter before March, 1882, and forward a few packages of newspapers, that is, if possible Good by until next year

THE REASON WHY.

The tonic effect of Kidney-Wort is produced by its cleansing and purifying action on the blood. Where there is a gravelly deposit in the urine or milky, ropy urine from disordered kidneys, it cures without fail Constipation and piles readily yield to its cathartic and healing power. Put up in dry vegetable form or liquid (very concentrated), either act prompt and sure —Troy Budget.

Surely truth is stranger than fiction One druggist alone has sold more than a thousand bottles of "ELIXIR OF LIFE ROOT" and has never found a case where it has failed to cure How is that for a record?

Fellows' Hypophosphites,

IS A REALY RELIABLE REMEDY FOR WASTING AND NERVOUS DISEASES.

After numerous experiments Mr Fellows succeeded in producing this combination of Hypophosphites which has not only reconciled ... health, but has since been found so successful in the treatment of disease emanating from loss of nerve power and consequently muscular relaxation viz

Aphonia (loss of voice)	Neuralgia,
Anæmia,	Nervous Debility
Chronic Diarrhœa,	Whooping Cough
Dyspepsia,	Congestion of the Lungs
Fever and Ague,	Palpitation of the Heart
Malaria,	Melancholy
Nervousness	Mental Depression

MALARIA

Persons living in Malarious districts may protect themselves from attacks of fever by the use of Fellows Compound Syrup of Hypophosphites Its effects in toning up the system enable it to ward off contagious disorders, and successfully combat disease.

The soluble phosphites and the other ingredients composing Fellows Hypophosphites are so carefully proportioned and so judiciously combined, that their action upon the nerves, muscles and membranes in imparting vitality, strength and healthy action is generally apparent within twenty four hours, and the good effects experienced are of a permanent character
